8 unknown trumps, 1 known

Talon: 24 cards (with 1 known trump) interesting thought - if we knew all the cards positions and opponents hands — it would be a solved game right?

Strategies

It's good to have a vertical collection (consecutive cards of same suit). It means u can attack the entire set one by one, without them replying. Controlling a suit forces opponent to lose trumps or take the cards. When attacking a set, start with the lowest, but skip one card in case you get attacked with them later on. That one card stops their momentum, and brings the tempo back to you.
